RENEW DRIVE TO FORCE AMERICA TO STABILIZE DOLLAR

Issue Revived So As To Coincide With Arrival
of Moley

NOT LIKELY TO SUCCEED

Moley Makes It Clear He Is Not To Discuss
Debts

GROLOGICAL MUSEUM, LONDON.
June 28.—(INS)—Arrival in London of assistant secretary of state, Raymond Moley, who is considered by some European statesmen as the "real voice of Washington," was signalled today by a renewed drive to persuade the United States to agree to some form of de facto currency stabilization.

Behind closed doors the American delegates to the World Economic Conference, are being told that unless they agree to hitch the dollar to the pound and franc, the parity will fail, and the blame will be placed on the United States.

It is patent the stabilization issue was revived to coincide with Moley's arrival in order to impress upon him, and through him upon President Roosevelt, the European contention that the responsibility rests with America.

It is considered unlikely that the European campaign will succeed, for with wheat at more than a dollar for the first time in three years, and other commodities rising, the United States appears to be in a position to push toward recovery irrespective of the World Economic Conference accomplishments if any.

Moley made it clear that he is not here to discuss debts, which is a severe disappointment to the British, nor currency stabilization which is equally disappointing to the French.

KILLED AT BAR

NEW YORK, June 28.—(INS)—An unidentified slayer today killed Lester Flynn, 30, as he stood alone at a bar in the shadow of Brooklyn Bridge.

Flynn, said by police to have a record of several arrests and convictions, fell with three bullets in his head.
The slayer ran from the place and disappeared.

Police expressed belief the shooting was the outgrowth of an underworld feud.

CUTTER REACHES TRAWLER

Boston, June 28.—(INS)—The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet today reached the side of the Boston trawler Flow and took her in tow for this port.

The Flow was in collision with the British freighter Corner Brook in a dense fog four miles northeast of Highland Light last night. One of her crew of fifteen men was injured.

CHICAGO HAS HEAT WAVE

Chicago, June 28.—(INS)—Searing temperatures that have broken all records or June heat today made a bake oven of the Central States, seat of a torrid wave that has gripped most of the nation east of the Rockies.

Temperatures hovering about the 100 degree mark and the continued absence of general rainfall have inflicted widespread damage throughout the grain belt.

In Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and the Dakotas the wheat crop is literally drying on the stalk under burning winds. Corn likewise is in dire need of rainfall.

IN BEACH HAVEN

John Roberts, Frank Pfeifer, William Warner, Richard Winslow and Dr. H. Doyle Webb spent Sunday on
Mr. Roberts' boat at Beach Haven,
N. J. They returned with 89 flounders and weak fish.

EMILIE

Mrs. Elizabeth Haines, Philadelphia,
and Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, Jr., and daughters, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baker and Mr.
and Mrs. William Baker.

FIREMEN INJURED

Phila., June 28.—Fire Captain Joseph Ford, 47, and Hoseman Edward Quinlan, 55, were severely injured today when a fire engine responding to a false alarm crashed into a truck loaded with live-stock. The victims were both suffering from lacerations and internal injuries.

FIND CHALFONT LAD IN PHILA.

Phila., June 28.—Ralph Sibless, 13, who gave his address as Chalfont, Bucks County, early today was found asleep on the running board of an automobile in South Philadelphia.

The boy said he had hitch-hiked here last night. Police were attempting to communicate with his parents.

PROMISE ANOTHER SENSATION

Washington, D. C., June 28.—A fresh income tax sensation was promised at the Senate Banking Inquiry today, through a revelation that the principle partners in the great international banking firm of Kuhn-Loeb & Company paid little income taxes in 1930, and nothing at all in 1931.

The Kuhn-Loeb partners followed the same procedure pursued by members of J. P. Morgan & Company in charging off business and stock market losses against their income. This enabled them to reduce and avoid income taxes.

TWO STATES VOTE WET

(By International News Service)
With California and West Virginia voters declaring against the 18th Amendment, one-third of the states today were on record as opposed to the nation's war-born prohibition legislation, all of them north of the Mason-Dixon line.

The first wet and dry test to be made in the solid South on the question of national prohibition will be made on July 18th, when Alabama and Arkansas go to the polls. Arkansas is claimed by the dries, while Representative Seagall, D., of Alabama, has gone on record as predicting an overwhelming victory for the wets in his home state.

The addition of California and West Virginia to the wet ranks now brings a total population of 52,721,593 in opposition to national dry laws. Other states which have already voted to repeal the 18th amendment are: New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Nevada, Illinois, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Wisconsin.

CHINESE SQUADRON RUNNING WILD

Shanghai, June 28th.—(I.N.S.)—The northeast squadron of the Chinese Navy was reported running wild today following an attempt to assassinate Admiral Shen Hung-Lien, its commander.

The squadron, which consists of five ships, was reported to have despoiled Officials said they believed it was headed for a point in the north China area demilitarized under the Sino-Japanese truce. One report stated the squadron might join the rebel generals who have launched a move for independence of the region.

Following the unsuccessful attempt on his life, the admiral went ashore.
He retained control of three small vessels.

AUTO CRASHES INTO TWO TRUCKS EARLY TODAY

Operator of Passenger Car is Treated Here; His Car
Greatly Damaged

NO ARREST AS YET

MORRISVILLE, June 28.—Losing control of his automobile this morning at about one o'clock, Robert M. Bil-myer, of 186 E. Court street, Doylestown, crashed into two large trucks owned by the Trenton, Philadelphia and Chester Transportation Company.
The two trucks were proceeding west on the Lincoln Highway, and Bilmyer was travelling toward this borough when the crashes occurred.

Bilmyer, who was injured, was treated at the office of a Bristol physician.

The drivers of the two trucks were:
Thomas J. McDermott, 5919 Trinity street, Philadelphia, and Charles Burchell, 300 W. Williams street, Trenton, N. J. Bilmyer first struck the McDermott truck, and then the one operated by Burchell. Neither truck driver was injured.

The machine of Bilmyer was greatly damaged, and the wheels of one of the chassis about two feet.

Highway patrolmen from the South Langhorne barracks investigated, but have made no arrest as yet.

In Drama of Plane Heroism

Three of the principals and the plane in the Lake Michigan tragedy which cost the lives of three heroic men are shown above. Forced down while on a flight over the lake, the craft sank, but not before the men had made a raft from gasoline tanks, on which they placed Mrs. Charles Rennie (center), who was rescued 30 hours later by an Ann Arbor ferry.
Charles Rennie (right), her husband, was drowned, as was James Gillette of Traverse City, Mich (left), pilot-owner of the plane, and Peter Keller, a mechanic.

ODD FELLOWS WIN, DEFEATING HIBERNIANS

Allowing but one hit, "Joe" Kohler blanked the Hibernians on the Emile field last night as his mates scored three times to register a 3-0 victory.

The only blow off the delivery of Kohler came in the sixth inning when Danny Hines dropped a safe one behind second base. It was Kohler's debut with the Oddies and also "Sid" Purcell's first game. Purcell had a triple to his credit.

The Odd Fellows made nine hits, three of these going to "Dutch" Afflerbach while Purcell and Hibbs had two each. L. Hibbs and D. Still made the other safe blows.

The losers played better ball after, not committing an error while the winners were charged with four.

Bristol A. A. started right where they left off in the first half and handed the Parkland A. A. a 12-2 lacing on Sullivan's field. From the first inning on, the Parkland team was out of the game and could not cope with the A's.
The A's began by scoring four times in the first and added another in their part of the second. After Parkland pushed a lone tally across in the fourth, the Mulholland men came right back with three more and four more in the last inning.

"Milt" Jones who has turned in some wonderful pitching performances lately was again the winning hurler, giving up seven hits to the Parkland team. Tryon and Moll twirled for the losers and both appeared wild.

LANGHORNE, June 28.—Blanking
the local nine here in a Bucks County League contest last evening, Hulme-ville team secured 14 runs.

The visitors counted for 11 hits, the locals for four, while each side made 18 outs. The winners, although leading by five runs, had their big inning in the sixth, counting for nine safeties at home.

Two two-base hits were made by Gilger; a three-bagger by Leigh. Devlin, Hulmeville's hurler, struck out five men, while Bing had none to his credit.

TWO DIVORCE ACTIONS STARTED IN COURT

Solebury Resident Alleges His Wife Made His Life
Intolerable

PERKASIE MAN SUES

Charging his wife with cruel and barbarous treatment, Fred Brooker, of Perkasie, has filed a libel in divorce in the Court of Common Pleas, at Doylestown here, it was learned today.

The respondent, Martha Brooker, and the libellant were united in marriage December 24, 1922, in Philadelphia. The present address of the respondent is Philadelphia. According to the libel, the respondent is alleged to have called the libellant vile and indecent names and made life intolerable for him.

Charging his wife with cruel and barbarous treatment, Jacob Propner, a resident of Solebury township, has filed a libel in divorce against his wife, Margaret Elizabeth Propner.

They were married September 15, 1920, according to the libel, and have resided in Solebury township since 1923. Both the libellant and respondent gave Solebury as their address.
According to the libellant, Mrs. Propner began to make life burdensome and intolerable for her husband on September 20, 1931, and continued to do so.

POSTPONED WEDDING LATER TAKES PLACE

Miss Angeline M. Giagnacova
Weds Mr. Ira Freet in Harrisburg

COUPLE WILL LIVE HERE

Announcement today is made of the marriage of the couple whose wedding was so abruptly postponed on Saturday when the parents of the bridegroom-to-be figured in an automobile accident near Harrisburg, which necessitated the intended bridegroom leaving here at once and causing a sensation when the wedding did not take place.

Today the father of the bride, Angelo Giagnacova, 310 Brook street, through a friend of the family, announced the marriage of his daughter, Angeline M., to Ira Freet. The ceremony took place yesterday, according to the spokesman, and was performed at Harrisburg by Alderman Emery M.
Marley. The license was issued in Dauphin County.

Dominick Giagnacova, brother of the bride, was a witness.

Monday, Miss Giagnacova received a telegram from her intended husband informing her that the accident to his father was not as serious as at first thought, and for her to come to his home in Chambersburg at once. Miss Giagnacova accompanied by her brother went to the Freet home and she,
Mr. Freet and the bride's brother, started back to Bristol yesterday,
stopping in Harrisburg enroute here,
for the wedding.

They reached Bristol last night and after a short wedding tour will take up their residence at their newly-furnished home, 261 Jackson street.

The wedding was originally scheduled to take place here Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the rectory of St. Ann's Church. The couple failed to arrive at the time designated.

Later a telegram was received by Miss Giagnacova from her intended husband advising her that his parents had met with an accident and that he had to leave at once for his home.

Mr. Freet's father suffered an injury to his leg, which at first was thought to be of a serious nature.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS MEET IN SESSION AT COUNTY SEAT

Address is Made by Dr. W. M.
Denison, Harrisburg, at Afternoon Session

REVIEWS LEGISLATION

Taxpayers Association Presents Its Idea of School Problems

DOYLESTOWN, June 28.—Addressing the Spring meeting of the Bucks County School Directors' Association in the Court House here yesterday afternoon, Dr. W. M. Denison, Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, declared that people who have money and do not pay their taxes simply because some other people have not paid, are not good American citizens.

Dr. Denison was the leading speaker of the afternoon session that was presided over by the new association president, Warren F. Strawsnyder, of Pleasant Valley, who was elected in the morning.

Representatives of the Bucks County Taxpayers' Civic Association met with the directors and several of them were given an opportunity to express their views on the convention floor during the day, with the best of feeling prevailing at all times.

Representing the Department of Public Instruction, Dr. Denison spoke particularly on the technicalities of recent school legislation passed in Harrisburg, explaining the bills which he deemed the most important.

Charles Binger, an executive officer of the Bucks County Taxpayers' Civic Association, one of the last speakers of the afternoon, called attention to the fact that in his opinion, Dr. Denison had spoken only of school legislation that he thought to be the most important but had failed to mention any bills that would bring in the necessary money to carry on the education of our Pennsylvania children and at the same time make it possible to greatly reduce school taxes.

"It is time that we all get together, tax-payers and school authorities, in one common cause, and see to it that Pennsylvania's untaxed wealth pays its share of educating the school children of the state," declared Mr. Binger.

Dr. Denison declared in his talk that a crisis exists in Pennsylvania when some teachers have received but two months salary during the past year.

He said that it was a pleasure for him to come back to Bucks county where there is evidenced so fine a cooperation between the people and the public schools of the county.

Dr. Denison paid a fine tribute to school directors when he said that in his opinion there is no finer type of American community service than that of being a conscientious director of a public school.

"The real battles are not always fought on the battle front," Dr. Denison said. "Many of the real battles are fought out back in the home community in that board of directors room
—the real front line of defense of our nation today."

"I am particularly pleased with the actions and behavior of the American people during this recent and present depression from which we

WILL DAVIS RESIGN?

Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's special ambassador abroad has arrived home.

Mr. Davis denied in London on the eve of his sailing that he was intending to resign. "You can take it from me definitely," he was quoted as saying, "that I am not resigning."

In addition to representing the United States at the disarmament conference, Mr. Davis was a member of the organizing committee of the world economic conference. He is at present chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva disarmament conference.

He came under fire in Congress recently following disclosure that he was on the Morgan preferred lists, his name appearing several times among those who were favored by the banking firm in being permitted to purchase certain stocks below their market values. He also had been a borrower from the Morgan firm, and, according to Representative Tinkham, he has been held, in a court decision in the District of Columbia, to have not acted in good faith and to have violated a fiduciary relationship in the taking of certain profits.

It may be that Mr. Davis does not regard himself as under any obligations to the Morgan firm for the favors received from it. The fact remains, though, that he was the recipient of such favors and that the international banking business of the Morgan firm makes the latter vitally interested in questions before both the disarmament conference and the economic conference.

Under these conditions, it does not seem proper that Mr. Davis should continue to represent the United States in his present capacity. By continuing to do so, he will have destroyed much of his usefulness and will be inviting justifiable criticism. It is not probable he may realize this after his talk with President Roosevelt and change his mind about resigning.

CAUTION IN THE WATER

Already this season there have been drowning accidents, bringing sudden death. Bathing cannot afford to forget that their summer sport, popular for its recreational benefits, is dangerous unless undertaken with due regard for water conditions and their own capabilities. Even a strong, skilled swimmer is in peril stroking alone through cold waters or across wide spaces unaccompanied by a boat with a practiced outman. There are several rules, such as waiting an adequate period after meals before entering the water, that should be regarded by all bathers, for cramps know no favorites.

The popularity of swimming and the increased facilities for learning the art have their dangerous side in that they occasionally tempt persons unfamiliar with the danger incurred to take unwise hazards.

Some drowning accidents occur through circumstances that one could hardly foresee, but most of them are quite within the classification of avoidable.

The reason people pay the grocer instead of the doctor is because they know they will need the grocer again.

And if a man makes a better mouse trap, the world thinks him an authority on the tariff, money and morals.

A peanut scramble ensued, and each child was given a taffy.

"STOLEN LOVE"

CHAPTER XXXV

"Joan, don't play with me!" What was she saying, this girl he loved?

"I'm not playing," she went on in that small, tortured voice. "I just don't want—oh, please, don't be cross with me—please don't—I can't bear it when you look at me like that—"

"You don't want me to forget you, and you don't want my love. Do you know what you do want, Joan?"

The coldness in his voice frightened her. She clutched him tighter.

"Please don't stop liking me—"

He looked down at her, silently.

"I won't stop liking you," he said at last. "I'm afraid I couldn't do that now. Not very easily. It's—too late. But you won't mind if I go now, will you? I have work to do, work that may keep me occupied for some time."

"You're not coming back!"

He freed her clinging hands. "I'll come back, Joan." He must go. . . . get away . . . while he could still keep his voice steady. . . . He stooped and kissed her once more. "Goodbye—take care of yourself!"

Joan slipped to her knees beside the couch, buried her distorted face in the silk cushions. Maisee had made, gorgeous, ticklish ones, trimmed with gold lace and flowers, remnants from the workshop.

Maisee came in from the kitchen, her hands all floury. "I heard the door shut. Isn't he going to stay for dinner? Oh, Johnnie, an' I was makin' biscuits!"

The young man from the newspaper was in the shop sketching costumes for the Spring Fashions Edition. He wore a very shiny old blue suit, and his nose was much too big. Still, he was a man, so Ruth hovered near him, chattering while he worked.

"I know a lot of newspaper men in Los Angeles," she said. "Did you know a tall, skinny fellow named . . . let's see . . . was it Shorty Carter? Something like that—he did something about baseball—"

"No, don't think so."

She had a cousin who was a printer in Seattle, but he didn't know him either.

"Say, who's the tall blonde over there?"

The first sign of life from him, and that about Joan. "Well, you're wasting your time getting interested in that," she said tartly.

"That's Joan Hastings, and she's going to marry Curtis Barstow—so that's that. Period, paragraph. Anything else you want to know?"

He laughed, and patted her hand, conveniently near. "Young attorney weds shop girl, eh?"

"I should say not—she's Madame's protégée, and she's supposed to be somebody or other—"

The young man had finished his drawings, he beamed on Ruth and went away.

Just after closing time the telephone rang. The girls had all gone so Francine answered it herself. Curtis Barstow's engagement to Joan Hastings announced! She almost dropped the receiver! A picture? The newspaper wanted a picture? Yes, she had several pictures of Miss Hastings. . . . no, she didn't know very much about the young lady except that she was a granddaughter of some important people, Van Fleet she thought the name was. Yes, they lived in Sausalito—

After she gave the picture she wondered if she should have spoken to Joan about it first. Joan was so queer about things. . . . better not say anything about it. . . . let her wonder where they got it.

For an engaged girl Joan looked awfully glum. "Maybe she's worrying about what old lady Barstow will say when the story comes out," Francine thought, noting the dark circles under Joan's eyes, and the listless droop to her shoulders. "Wonder what the old lady will say? . . . wonder if Ma knows, and never told me, the old stingy!"

HOLLYWOOD.

Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc. All the Somerset Maugham fans will be glad to know that Radio has not abandoned the idea of producing "Of Human Bondage."

To the contrary it will be a big picture on the fall program, and will have Irene Dunne, as well as Leslie Howard in the cast.

The studio's unwillingness for anyone but Howard to play the part is the real reason for the delay.

He finally leaves for New York today and will sail shortly for London. Present plans call for a picture over there and a brief vacation.

As you must know by now, the actor has signed a long term contract to be a Warner Brothers star. The R-K-O deal was made previously, however, and will take precedence.

Meanwhile, there will be no rest for Irene Dunne. She has to do "Ann Vickers" and "Lady Sal" before the Maugham novel.

And, incidentally, the star has just squealed another rumor about a rift in her marriage.

An element of humor once more enters the Jack Oakie-Toluca Lake business, which was just a rib until Eastern papers began to take it seriously.

Jack went out the other day to take a swim in the forbidden waters. He dived in and came up spluttering.

"Hey," he cried, "how about starting a movement to keep Toluca Lake out of Jack Oakie?"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE: You haven't heard much about it, but Clara Bow is one of the real contract bridge fiends of the film colony. She plays every night. In fact, Rex Bell flips that before he hires any hand at the ranch, he first must ask him whether he plays bridge and then whether he can punch cows.

Bing Crosby turned down $4,000 for a week's personal appearances at the Paramount here, so he could be close at hand when Dixie Lee has to go to the hospital.

Although Doug Fairbanks, Jr., did not get to write his novel in Italy, he made some important friends. There was a week-end at Sandwich with the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland. There's still some discussion whether Doug will play the Noel Coward or the Alfred Lunt role in the screen version of "Design for Living."

After so long a time, Chic Sale is to get away from old man characters on the screen. He's signed to do a short comedy for Phil Ryan (Paramount release) in which he plans to revive the wise-cracking rural youth, Filbert Twitch, of his vaudeville days.

A sprained ankle will keep George Bancroft off his feet for a couple of weeks. . . . Despite those rumors, Claudette Colbert and Norman Foster were together at the premiere of "20th Century."

The MacArthur play drew most of Hollywood to its first performance. Loudest applause went to Gregory Ratto, as the theatrical producer of this lusty satire.

It's a Samuel Goldwyn term contract for June Gale, the pretty lass who has been going around with Hoot Gibson of late. She's to play parts in both the Cantor and the Sten pictures.

PICTORIAL REVIEW and PARAMOUNT NEWS

Thur.-Fri. Maurice Chevalier in "A Bedtime Story"

The Mansfield Act (Act 132), was spoken of briefly by Dr. Denison. He said that it was his personal opinion that school taxes paid quarterly will bring in more money than paid annually.

At the opening of the afternoon session, President Strawnsnyder appointed Dr. Fox, retiring president, as chairman of a committee to meet with the Bucks County Taxpayers' Civic Association at any time they might desire to discuss school tax problems.

Henry Arnold Todd, of Doylestown township, president of the Bucks County Taxpayers' Civic Association, said that he could not see how anything but good will could exist between taxpayers and school directors.

He stated that at the present time there are twenty-five taxpayers' associations organized in Bucks county, with approximately 4000 members.

At the morning session, Colonel Roger O. Mason, of Doylestown township, secretary of the county taxpayers' association, offered a number of suggestions for the consideration of the directors.

"The Bucks County Taxpayers' Civic Association is not composed of any one class or group, but of many professions, trades and occupations and therefore on account of its numerical strength represents in no doubtful way the thought and action of the people," Colonel Mason said.

Colonel Mason pointed out that the association is vitally interested in good, clean, efficient service on the part of each and every office holder in the township, borough, county and state government.

"That also means the wise, efficient and economical expenditure of public funds intrusted to their several and respective cares," he added.

"We are proud of our public school opportunities, glad to be able to endorse so many of our school boards, but we also insist on every economy that can legitimately be practiced during these trying times. A square deal or a new deal has been mentioned, and that is what we are seeking."

"The Civic Association holds and maintains that the salary of the teacher should be of ample return for the type of service rendered, and no more. It should be such an amount that worry of livelihood should be removed from minds engaged in the instruction of the coming generations.

"Dreams on the part of theorists, while pleasant in contemplation, dealing with increased expansion of power of school heads, can find no echo of response in the pocketbook of the taxpayer."

"Among the great number of bills introduced at the 1933 session of the General Assembly was House Bill 550 and 1015. They were emergency acts providing it was believed, ample school funds, yet giving a greatly needed relief to the land owner by taxing also that hitherto and untouched state source of wealth incomes."

"House Bill 550 provided for the distribution from an emergency state income tax of the proceeds therefrom to school districts annually for three years upon net income at 2 per cent of both resident and non-resident, while House Bill 1015 by a 4 mill assessment on the total amount of assessed valuation of all property taxable for school purposes would give it was thought, relief from high taxes on farms and other land property."

"These bills were sponsored by the Tax Justice League of Pennsylvania, an organization of some 800,000 strong. They were moves in the right direction, even if some of their provisions might not altogether fit all locations and all interests."

"Today, land is not the only source, in fact, is but 40 per cent of the reported wealth, while it bears some 80 per cent of the tax burden. We hold that incomes of all kinds and of all classes, whether derived from tax money or otherwise obtained, should be called upon to furnish their proper part in this tax scheme. We however draw the line sharply that where income is derived from land only, one or the other should be taxed, not both. Bonds or other paper producing income which may be or are by law tax exempt, should be removed from this class of preferred capital and called upon for their proper share in this tax picture."

"It is reported on good authority that the supply of teachers in the state is greater than the demand. Even Dan Cupid appears unable to effectually check the oversupply, and the state normal schools turn out more each year."

"That is certainly poor business although it may be considered good politics. We therefore hold and respectfully suggest that a portion of these schools be discontinued as training schools for teachers, the State utilizing the discontinued normal schools in other ways."

"We hold centralized schools, where other suitable schools exist in townships, are unnecessary at this time, for not only is additional expense incurred for the taxpayers for bond issues in the erection of a centralized building but the abandoned ones constitute a liability on the community for maintenance while the additional positions created only add to the total expense."

Another address of interest was that delivered by the new president of the school directors' association, Mr. Strawnsnyder, who spoke of a constructive program for Bucks county schools.

"How many of us here today, who are often critical of many things in the present day schools, wish that we would have had the opportunity of possessing?" he asked.

"Until a better method of financing schools is put into operation we must strive to give the best we can with the money available. Real estate bears too large a burden toward financing school operation. The graduated income tax proposal is one of the methods the directors and their representatives should work for."

"A large amount is expended by many districts for administration, whereas part of this money could be used towards a constructive program without any extra burden on the taxpayer. In fifty districts in Bucks county, the amount paid for treasurers' salaries amounted to about $12,000. One district paid $1100 in 1933 for treasurer's salary."

"A very large factor involved in a constructive program is the co-operation of the people in a school district. One group you have to deal with are the critics, friendly and otherwise—many otherwise."

"There is a group that is ignorant of what the schools are doing, who are without information. There are those who are ignorant of the modern teacher's duties. There is a group that believes that because there has been extravagance in government, national and state, there necessarily must be extravagance in all school operation."

"Those in public and other life, who would attack the schools as a smoke screen to divert the attention of the public from their own selfish plans and purposes, compose another group."

A Series of Open Letters to Bank Depositors

LETTER No. 1

To Our Depositors:

We believe the day is at hand when every progressive banker must give serious thought to the installation of a measured or graduated service charge on checking accounts.

The average banker has his Q's mixed. He has been seeking Quantity when Quality was what he needed. Quality accounts, however, only result from the adoption of a definite policy of account building and the expenditure of many hours of painstaking effort to carry out that policy in detail.

We like to compare a bank to a custom smelter where miners may bring their ore to have it smelted. As it is dumped into the bunkers it is assayed for values—some of it is low grade and some high grade—and the miner receives credit according to the values present less the cost of smelting, which cost varies with each type of ore. To be sure, the smelterman knows what these costs are. He knows the quantity of ore does not count—quality is the watchword. He realizes this, and so does the miner, because he has been educated that way—that the only value to commerce lies in the metal after the ore has been refined.

Of course, the smelterman makes a profit out of the smelting process, and also expects to be paid adequately for safeguarding the metal while he seeks a desirable market and for assuming the risks of that market. This latter step in the process may be compared to the loan and investment department of a bank. The income from loans repays the banker for the work of investing and for the risks therein involved, plus (sometimes) an amount large enough to absorb the losses involved in handling the lower grade deposits which slip by without assay, and to pay a profit to the stockholders who are carrying on under a banker's double liability.

As a rule, the bank customer does not know until he is told that some deposits are low grade and some high grade. Float, clearings, exchange, etc., are terms unknown to him. It must be explained to him that an account with more activity than the balances justify, results in a loss to the bank. In other words, until the banker assays each depositor's account and explains that assay to the depositor only the banker is to blame if he is handling lower grade accounts at a loss.

LEIGHTON IN FORM FOR DAMP WASH NINE

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE
Schedule for Tonight
INDEPENDENTS vs. ST. ANN'S
(St. Ann's Field)

"Hokey" Leighton gave an excellent exhibition of hurling on St. Ann's field last night as the Damp Wash A. A. opened the second half with a 5-1 victory over the Jefferson A. C.

Leighton allowed the "Mules" but two hits, one in the first and one in the last frame. In between that time, Leighton retired sixteen batters in a row. He fanned nine batters and passed one. His pass aided the losers to score their only tally of the fray.

In the last frame, Mulligan erred on Tentilucci's easy roller. Wright rolled out to Dries, Tentilucci going to second. Britton grounded to short, Tentilucci going to third. Hibbs made the second hit off Leighton, a single to left. Vandine was passed but Leighton caught Hibbs off second, Mulligan making the put-out.

The winners did all their scoring in two innings, the third and the fifth. Each of the five runs were earned. In the third, Smith doubled to right and scored when Leighton doubled to center. Mulligan bunted and beat it out for a hit. Mulligan went to second unassisted. Corrigan singled to right to score Leighton and Mulligan. Reese hit into a double play, Tentilucci to Keating to Britton.

In the fifth, two more runs were chalked up. Fuoco slashed a hit to right. Leighton singled over second, Mulligan's hit to left scored Fuoco. Leighton came home on Corrigan's third hit to right. Reese fanned and Kantor rolled out.

"Gunner" Corrigan and "Hokey" Leighton had perfect batting averages for the night, Corrigan getting three out of three and Leighton two out of two.

The fielding of "Bud" Wright in centerfield for the losers was the feature of the game.

—What about it?*

TALKING ABOUT the reputation of a cigarette—that's something new.

I know about reputation of people . . . reputation of some other things . . . and, come to think about it, I should say that CHESTERFIELD has an A-1 reputation.

You know, it seems to have real merit. To me, for a cigarette 'To Satisfy,' it certainly has to be made right; and then it has to taste right. I just don't like them strong . . . they just have to be mild.

CHESTERFIELD has what it takes to satisfy. That's what people say about it."
